Summary

Mahsa (Zhina) Amini, a 22-year-old young woman from Saqqez, Kurdistan who had traveled to Tehran on Tuesday, September 13, 2022, was taken into custody by several Moral Security Police officers at the Haqqani metro station in Tehran charged with not observing the strict Islamic dress code and was taken to the detention center of this organization known as Vozara.

Shortly after her arrest, her partially alive body was transferred to the intensive care unit of Kasra Hospital, she was admitted in a coma with level three consciousness.

Given the atrocious track record of the police force in mistreating the accused and previous incidents that were similar to this, public opinion reacted acutely to this situation because there was the widespread perception that this young girl was beaten in the Vozara detention center.

The widespread street protests against this incident were set off from the time Mahsa Amini was announced, in front of Kasra Hospital on Argentina Street in Tehran, and then quickly spread to the streets despite the intimidating presence of Iran's security apparatus. The protests after Mahsa's burial in a Saqqez cemetery, intensified whereby after twenty days of nationwide protests, they spread all of Iran's 31 provinces, 105 cities, and 69 major universities.

The protests were not limited to Ms. Amini's death and quickly targeted the Iranian government's political and ideological foundations. These protests were violently quashed by the anti-riot police and Iran's militia force (baseej) through the use of teargas, pellets, and live ammunition. This widespread crackdown has led to the death of dozens of people and the wounding of hundreds of protestors.

Despite the severe communication restrictions imposed by the Iranian government, the following report summarizes the twenty days of protests between September 17, to October 5, 2022. The protests that at the time of this report are still going on in various forms. They are not necessarily in the form of street protests, but they manifest themselves in a variety of individual and collective actions.

Unique Features of These Protests

These protests reviewed in this report have unique characteristics that differentiate them from the protests of the last decade in Iran and are at times unprecedented in the life of the Islamic Republic.

- Contrary to most of the protests in recent years, this recent protest was not based on economic or environmental grievances. Instead, political, and human rights demands were at the center of it.
- These protests were triggered by the death of a young, Kurdish and Sunni woman. Being female, Kurdish and of Sunni faith are all grounds for discrimination in Iran for her being a woman, being a Kurd, and being a Sunni was attributed to oppressed groups and subjected to gender, ethnic, and religious discrimination. Yet, the Iranian public showed a united front and disregarded all these categories that tend to divide people and instead displayed that collectively they can take a positive step forward.
- The Iranian youth, whose average age has now reached 15 years of age, according to law enforcement officials, has played a key role in these protests.
- An unprecedented solidarity has been formed between Iranians inside Iran and those in the diaspora.
- These protests put almost all classes of Iranian society into one unified group of people in support of the protesters. The urban middle class alongside the lower or upper classes in small and large urban areas, different ethnic groups, religious minorities, sexual minorities, and trade groups including teachers, laborers, students, professors, artists, and athletes were integral to this united front. In these protests, we witnessed different businesses showing solidarity with the protesters by going on strikes.
- In terms of continuity, these protests can be considered among the longest continuous protests since the inception of the Islamic Republic of Iran.
- Because of the substantive and progressive demands of these protesters, the international community, especially celebrities in the fields of the arts, culture, and politics, became the voice of the Iranian people in an unprecedented way, and by disseminating information and taking various actions, they have attention to what is going on in Iran.
- The demands of the protesters, which centered on the issue of women's rights, have indicated that Iran has a progressive and assertive society.
- One of the distinguishing features of these protests from the previous ones was unarmed protesters routinely confronting the security forces. There have been many scenes of protesters showing solidarity as they came together to prevent people from being taken into custody or by standing in front of the police who were equipped with full anti-riot gear. Public anger over the operation of the Moral Security Police and decades of meddling by this force in the most personal areas of women's lives was also a great motivating factor for the protesters to resist being subjugated by Iran's security apparatus.
- In addition to the street protests, there was cyber warfare going on between the opponents and supporters of the status quo. Numerous government sites were hacked, and the global solidarity propelled Mahsa Amini's hashtag, which became the first in the history of Twitter to record more than 300 million tweets.

- The government of Iran this time around gave more latitude to Faraja (Iran's main law enforcement agency) and their rank and file to spearhead the repression of the street protests. The government also adopted alternative methods regarding the Internet (e.g., reducing its speed rather than cutting it off as we as filtering certain sites). Also, after the death of an army officer, it became clear that the Iranian army also played a role in suppressing protests, which is considered a rare event.
- The media close to Iran's security apparatus tried to cover the protests in their own way by sending their reporters to the streets to present the news in a slanted way that is favorable to the government. These reporters continuously have provided the latest from street clashes between the protesters and security forces.
- These protests, which have lacked leadership and command-and-control, have shown that Iranian society, especially its younger generation, is determined to attain their basic human rights.

The Protests

At the time when Iranian president Ebrahim Raisi spoke about human rights in his annual speech at the UN General Assembly, Iranian protesters took to the streets to speak out against police brutality and discriminatory religious laws against women in Iranian society.

On September 17, the first sparks of these protests took place in Tehran, Sanandaj and Saqqez. Then the protests quickly reached other cities and different social groups and classes.

Thirty-one provinces, in other words, Iran's all provinces, were the scenes of protests from September 17 to October 5, 2022.

In the 20 days of protests that are reviewed in this report, a total of 105 cities from Iran's all 31 provinces became the scene of protests up to 266 times. If there were instances when the protesters could not find their way to the street, that was due to tight security measures in the area.

In addition to 226 instances of street protests, there were 76 protests on 69 university campuses.

The cities where protesters appeared in the streets during a week of protest have been verified by HRANA as follows:

Protesters' Slogans

Various slogans were chanted in the gatherings. The ones that were repeated most are listed below:

- We are all Mahsa, if you fight, we will fight back
- Cannons, Tanks, Fireworks, the Mullah Should Get Lost
- We don't want the Islamic Republic, we do not.
- Death to the rule of the Islamic Jurist
- Get lost Baseeji (Islamic militia), get lost Baseeji
- Liberty, liberty, liberty
- Death to Khamenei
- Justice, liberty, optional clothing
- Death to Morality Police and its Patrol
- Our stupid leader is our disgrace
- Death to the Islamic Republic
- Saqqez is not alone, Sanandej has your back.
- Killing women for bad hijab, how long such humiliation?
- Be scared, we are all united
- We will fight, we will die, we will get Iran back
- Women, life, liberty
- From Yazd to Kurdistan, we give our lives for Iran
- Jailed students should be released
- Sharif University students are honorable, the Baseejis are humiliated
- No to headscarves, no to beating women
- Liberty, equality, Justice
- Liberty, optional clothing
- From Kurdistan to Tabriz, it's all poverty, corruption, and discrimination
- This is not just a protest, it's the start of a revolution
- We do not want universities under siege, we do not

- If we do get united, they will kill us one by one
- Evin prison has turned into a university, Tehran has become a detention center
- Justice, liberty, optional clothing
- They have killed Sharif students, but they say they didn't kill Mahsa
- Students would rather die than get humiliated
- Students are in jail; our professors stay silent
- Honorable students, support us, support us
- We will fight, we will die; we will get Iran back
- You killed our students, now ask us to stay silent
- Azerbaijan is awake, it supports Kurdistan
- Liberty is our right, Zhina (Mahsa) is our code word
- Poverty, corruption and injustice; shame on this despotism
- Servitude, unemployment, forced hijab on women

Conclusion

Three weeks after Mehsa (Zhina) Amini's death, Iran's Medical Forensic Organization, published its pathology tests showing her "death was not caused by blows to the head or any vital organs and parts of the body."

In the statement of the coroner's office, it is stated: "Based on hospital medical documents, the investigation of C. T-scan of the brain and lungs, the results of the physical examination of the body and autopsy, pathology tests, Mahsa's death was not caused by strikes to the head and the vital organs and other parts of the body."

The Iranian coroner's office added that due to the "underlying illness" of Mahsa Amini, "she did not have the necessary ability to compensate and adapt to the situation, therefore, under the circumstance, she suffered from a heart rhythm disorder and a drop in blood pressure, and subsequently, a decrease in the level of consciousness, which due to the ineffective cardio-respiratory resuscitation in the first critical minutes, she suffered severe hypoxia resulting in brain damage."

In its statement, this government body claimed that "despite the return of cardiac function following the resuscitation of the emergency personnel, the respiratory support did not work" and despite being transferred to the hospital "she passes away on September 16 due to multi-organ failure (M.O.F) caused by cerebral hypoxia."

In response to this statement, Saleh Nikbakht, the lawyer for the Amini family, told the media that the medical examiner's claim that Mahsa Amini's death was caused by a glandular surgery that was performed on her when she was eight is baseless because the same surgeon who performed the surgery has said it cannot be the cause of her death. Other neurologists have refuted this too.

Mr. Nikbakht also called Mahsa Amini's "instant death" and the attempt to link it with "her childhood surgery or taking thyroid pills" nonsense and said how is it possible that Mahsa Amini, who "has not had any physical issues for 15 years, after being taken into custody by the Morality Police and spending an hour and a half at their headquarters, suddenly has a stroke, heart, and kidney failure and loses ninety-eight percent of her vital signs."

According to the lawyer of the Amini family, Mahsa Amini's case "is in the investigation stage and has not yet been filed with the court."

These protests, besides the cost in blood they had for the protesters, have cost the human rights violators dearly as well.

There have been spontaneous collective actions by the protesters to identify human rights violators and agents of repression. There have been orchestrated attempts such as the Spreading Justice as well, which aims at identifying human rights violators using digital tools and by following up on the information received. Spreading Justice uses the information they receive to incur costs for human rights violators.

A number of Western countries have approved new human rights sanctions against Iran.

In the latest action, the US Treasury Department sanctioned seven officials of the Islamic Republic of Iran for cutting off the Internet and suppressing protesters during protest rallies.

Ahmad Vahidi, Minister of the Interior, Issa Zarepour, Minister of Communications, Hossein Sajdinia, Deputy of Faraja (law enforcement) Operations, Yadullah Javani, Political Deputy of the Revolutionary Guards, Vahid Majid, Chief of Fata (a force that fights cyber-crimes) Police, Hossein Nejat, Commander of Tharullah Camp, and Hossein Rahimi, Chief of Tehran Police, are listed as human rights violators. Sanctions have been imposed.

The U.S. Treasury Department had previously slapped sanctions on Iran's Moral Security Police and a number of human rights violators such as Seyed Ismael Khatib, the Minister of Information, Manouchehr Amanollahi, the police commander of Kermanshah province, Salar Abnoush, the commander of the Revolutionary Guards, Kyomars Heydari, the commander of the ground forces of the Islamic Republic of Iran, Haj Ahmed Mirzaei, the former head of Tehran's Moral Security Police, Mohammad Rostami Cheshme Gachi, the police chief of Minab city, and Qasem Rezaei.

The Ministry of Foreign Affairs of Canada also announced sanctions against the Moral Security Police, the Cyber Defense Command of the Revolutionary Guards, Evin Prison, and a number of Iranian figures known for taking part in widespread human rights violations, namely Mohammad Hassan Bagheri, Chief of the General Staff of the Armed Forces of the Islamic Republic, Hossein Salami, Commander The General of the Islamic Revolutionary Guard Corps, Ismail Qaani, Commander of the Quds Force of the Islamic Revolutionary Guard Corps, Mohammad Saleh Hashemi Golpaigani, the Secretary of the Commanding Good and Prohibiting Evil, Ismail Khatib, the Minister of Information, Mohammad Rostami, the Chief of the Moral Security Police.

The Ministry of Foreign Affairs of Canada also called the Moral Security Police, the Cyber Defense Command of the Revolutionary Guards, Evin Prison and a number of Iranian figures known for participating in widespread human rights violations, namely Mohammad Hassan

Bagheri, Chief of the General Staff of the Armed Forces of the Islamic Republic, Hossein Salami, Commander The General of the Islamic Revolutionary Guard Corps, Ismail Qaani, Commander of the Quds Force of the Islamic Revolutionary Guard Corps, Mohammad Saleh Hashemi Golpaigani, the Secretary of the Command for Good and Prohibition of Evil, Ismail Khatib, the Minister of Information, Mohammad Rostami, the Chief of the Moral Security Police, sanctioned.

Also, in the first days of the protests, six member states of the European Union, including Germany, France, Denmark, Spain, Italy, and the Czech Republic, proposed new sanctions against the Islamic Republic. The proposed sanctions will cover 16 individuals, organizations, and institutions in Iran that have played key roles in suppressing the protesters.

Disruption in Internet Access

Disruption in the Internet and mobile communication networks was detected from the first days of the recent protests.

From September 20, 2022, Internet disruptions reached its peak, especially in Kurdistan and other protest hotbeds.

The cities of Saqqez, Sanandaj, Tehran, Mahabad, Ahvaz, Baneh, Bukan, Kermanshah, Qazvin, Arak, Mashhad, Marivan, Paveh, Bijar, Qorveh, Kamiyaran, Dehgolan, Sarovabad, Diwandara, Urmia, Rasht, Shahinshahr, Karaj, Piranshahr, Sardasht, Shiraz, Chabahar, Shahin Dej, Takab, Rabat, Ashnavieh, Langrood and Amlesh experienced the most cases of Internet disruptions until September 30, 2022.

There are several reports that indicate that in a number of cities in the country, the speed of the Internet diminished from 12 noon to 4p.m., and then from 4p.m. to 12 midnight, the reduction in the speed of home Internet doubled. And mobile Internet was also completely cut off in that period.

In addition, the review of Internet Outage Detection (IODA) data, which reviews Internet traffic around the world, indicates that the 10 provinces that face the most interruptions and disruptions of the internet are: Hormozgan, Fars, Isfahan, Ilam, Qom, Semnan, Tehran, Qazvin, Mazandaran, and Golestan.

From September 29, when the communication disruption took a nationwide form, platforms such as Instagram, WhatsApp, Skype, App Store, Google Play, Clash of Clans, LinkedIn, and Viber were filtered.

In the wake of Internet disruptions, the amount of Internet usage in Iran diminished by 67 percent and also mobile communication networks, including First Mobile, Irancell, and Rightel, suffered constant disruptions.

Also, the Axios News site reported a 3,000 percent increase in the demand for and download of Virtual Private Networks (VPN) in the country.

In the first days of the nationwide protests, Elon Musk, the owner of Starlink, promised satellite Internet for all Iranians. After his comment, the site of Mr. Musk's company was filtered in Iran.

Also, the text messages containing Mahsa Amini's name were filtered and blocked by the Hamrahe Aval Telecommunication Network.

During this period, various human rights groups issued statements and expressed their concern about the Internet shutdown in Iran and its repercussions.

On Monday, September 24, the Tejarat News Web site reported in a news story that after reviewing the economic consequences of the internet outage in Iran it concluded that the livelihoods of about 10 million Iranians are in jeopardy just because of the lack of access to Instagram. However, Issa Zarepour, the Minister of Communications and Information Technology announced the establishment of new filters indefinitely.

According to many experts, many online businesses are on the verge of bankruptcy, and eight hours of daily Internet outage has caused a lot of financial hardship to Iranian economy.

Hamshahri newspaper reported in a news story that nine million Iranian citizens who have chosen Instagram as their preferred method to do business have faced serious challenges after the regime began filtering Instagram.

Human and Financial Losses

A large number of protesters and security forces were killed and wounded during the twenty days of the nationwide protests.

There was also a lot of damage to government and private property.

Violence

During the nationwide protests, in addition to the dead, scores of citizens across the country were injured in various ways. According to news reports, these injuries are caused by beatings with batons, electric shocks, or because of the use of weapons such as pepper spray, tear gas, pellets, or plastic bullets, and in some cases, weapons of war, especially handguns.

According to news reports, military forces have used ambulances and city buses to move their forces around in urban areas. Protesters' defensive actions, as a result, have caused damage to around 60 ambulances in the country. In addition, law enforcement agencies have also used city schools as bases to store their gear and equipment in preparation to confront the protesters. Consequently, these places have sustained damage to their structure during clashes. The mayor of Tehran has also claimed that 43 city buses, 54 bus stations, and 25 fire engines have sustained damage in the city.

Many pictures and videos published on social networks, as well as news reports that have been shared with HRANA, indicate the frequent use of handguns by law enforcement to quell the protests.

A major part of the anti-riot police deployed during the protests is coming from the ranks of the Islamic Republic Police Command (Faraja), of which the special unit (Yegan Vijeh) is the main component.

The Basij force, along with the police, was one of the main bodies to suppress the protesters during the unrest in this period, and it seems that the most casualties sustained by government law enforcement were also from this group.

The unregulated use of shotguns with pellets by law enforcement has resulted in the injury of many protesters.

These forces have tried to use firearms against elderly people, protesting teenagers or even children present during the protests. In some cases, firearms have resulted in serious injury to the eyes of these protesters. Some have lost complete eyesight.

In addition, according to the reports received by HRANA, during the last few days, hundreds of arrested protestors have been transferred to Qarchak, Varamin, Tehran, Vakil Abad, Ilam, Evin and other prisons in the country.

Media outlets that are close to the government have claimed, however, that many of the personnel in the Baseej and law enforcement have been injured in the protests. This claim is not, however, consistent with the available evidence. The heavy hand of the forces deployed against the protesters makes this less plausible.

Iran's official media claimed the Iranian economy suffered damages to the tune of 800 or 100 billion tomans (the Iranian currency) due to the recent protests and strikes. Officials have claimed 460 bank branches and ATMs, and 61 ambulances were damaged. That bank shareholders have also lost tens of billions of tomans. In addition, the four-day closure of shops in 80 cities in the country, the destruction of 70 bus stations, 100 buses, 30 fire engines, and 15 police cars have all been damaging to public services.

As usual, the Iran security apparatus tried to deny responsibility for the violence and damage to property and places and pin the blame on the protesters by publishing reports including coerced confessions from the detainees. However, pictures of security forces destroying houses and the personal property of citizens have been published on social networks.

The Fatalities in the Protests

HRANA has divided the information about the fatalities in the 20-day protests into three categories.

The first group is 200 people whose identities have been received by the HRANA News Agency. Verification of this batch is in progress. So far, the verification of the death of 31 people from this list has been directly verified and confirmed by HRANA, and other information is being investigated at the time of publication of this report.

Among the identities under investigation, 7% are women, and also among the 43 identities whose exact or relative age has been determined, 29% are people who were less than 18 years old.

Child victims

Following are the names of some of the victims of younger than 18 years old: Zakaria Khial (16 years old), Amin Maroufi (16 years old), Amirali Fouladi (16 years old), Parsa Rezadoost (17 years old), Siavash Mahmoudi (16 years old), Nika Shakarami (17 years old), Sarina Esmailzadeh (16 years old), Samer Hashemzehi (16 years old), Amirhossein Basati (15 years old), Mohammad Reza Sarvari (14 years old), Ali Mozaffari Salanghouch (17 years old), Sedis Keshani (14 years old), Javad Pousheh (12 years old), Jaber Shirouzi (12 years old), Amir Mahdi Farkhipour (17 years old), Ehsan Alibazi (16 years old), Omid Safarzahi (17 years old), Nima Shafaqdoost (16 years old),

The second category is remarks or reports made by government officials or government institutions and human rights groups. This category only relies on figures but without mentioning any details and identities. In this category, in two reports from the Fars news agency, as well as a statements from the Friday Prayer Imam of the Sunni community in Zahedan, there are 100 fatalities as the minimum number from reliable statistics.

The third category is the security forces or plainclothes agents who have been killed during the protests, and their deaths have been confirmed and announced by the media close to the security apparatus.

Reactions

Following the arrest and death of Mahsa (Jhina) Amini and then the beginning and continuation of protests, some Iranian and international political figures and activists, artists and public figures did not remain silent. The following is a brief mention of these supports.

Non-governmental Political Figures in Iran

Masoumeh Ebtekar, former President Hassan Rouhani's vice president for women and family affairs, called the surveillance video attributed to Mahsa Amini in the Vozara Detention Centre released by the police as truncated and said that this video has raised more questions. Sayyid Mohammad Khatami, the fifth president of the Islamic Republic of Iran, called the death of Mehsa Amini an "unfortunate tragedy."

Many Iranian political figures living inside the country, such as Mahmoud Ahmadinejad, Ali Motahari, Ahmad Montazeri, Zahra Rahnavard, Abdollah Ramezan-zadeh, Mahmoud Sadeghi, Mohammad Reza Aref, Fatemeh Hashemi Rafsanjani, Azar Mansouri, Jalal Mirzaei, Ali Shakuri Rad, Ayatollah Mostafa Mohaghegh Damad, Abbas Abdi, Abolfazl Qadiani, Hamid Rasaei and other figures like Jafar Kosha, (president of Iranian Bar Association), Farshid Gurbanpour (journalist), Abdul Samad Khorramshahi (lawyer), Nasrin Sotoudeh (lawyer) and Maulvi Abdul Ghaffar Naqshbandi (a figure for Sunni people in Iran in Iran and the Imam of Friday prays at Rask Mosque) reacted to the mentioned events in the country through publishing a message. Grand Ayatollah Asadollah Bayat-Zanjani, a senior cleric, also vocally criticized the "morality police" (Ghashte-e-Ershad) and described it as illegal, illegitimate and irrational, as well as against religion.

Furthermore, several professors at the Sharif University of Technology went on strike in response to the arrest of students. Shahram Khazaei, Sohrab Rahwar, Ali Ghazizadeh, Mehrzadpour Mohammad Namvar, Alireza Moazezi Tehrani, Siros Askari, Alireza Bahreini, Zahra Kaveh Vash and Ali Sharifi Zarchi are nine of the professors of Sharif University of Technology who, while emphasizing that "until the release of students Detainees will not hold classes," went on strike.

Dara Moazzami (professor of Technical faculty of Tehran University), Keyvan Sarreshteh, Milad Shajareh, Maham Miqani, Hamidreza Paasvar and Mozhgan Khaleghi (visiting professors of faculty of Performing Arts of Tehran University of Fine Arts Campus), Nasrullah Hekmat (professor of department of Philosophy at Shahid Beheshti University), Negar Zilabi (professor of faculty of Theology at Shahid Beheshti University), Majid Rajabi (professor of the faculty of Mechanics, University of Science and Technology), Morteza Sediq (Professor of the faculty of Architecture, University of Science and Technology), Maryam Kashkulnia (professor of the Visual Arts, faculty of the College of Fine Arts), Pedram Mohammadi (professor of University of Performing Arts), Alireza Mostaghni (head of the faculty of Architecture and Urban Planning, University of Arts), Alireza Heydari (member of the faculty of department of Pediatric Dentistry, Tehran University of Medical Sciences), Azin Movahed (member of faculty of Fine Arts, Tehran University) and a group of professors of Tehran University's music department also announced their strike. Lili Galehdaran, a member of the academic staff of the Dramatic Literature Department of the Shiraz University of Arts, while supporting the nationwide protests, also resigned from her position in protest against the death of Mehsa Amini.

In addition, Mohammad Javad Azari Jahormi, the former intelligence officer who served as the Minister of Information and Communications Technology in the administration of President Hassan Rouhani, reacted to the limitations of the Internet and social media filters by publishing a message on his Telegram channel and wrote: "This way of interacting with cyberspace is definitely wrong. Once burned, twice shy."

More so, some Iranian and non-Iranian political prisoners and civil activists reacted to the recent events by sending messages and letters from prison. Salimollah Hossein Bar (a political prisoner in Saravan Prison), Leila Hosseinnzadeh (a student activist in the Adil Abad Prison in Shiraz), Hamid Haj Jafar Kashani, Payam Shakiba, Saeed Eqbali and Ali Mousanezhad Farkoush (political prisoners in Rajaei Shahr Prison in Karaj), Sepideh Qolian (political prisoner in Evin Prison), Soheil Yadollahi (political prisoner in Bojnord Prison), Narges Mohammadi, Aliyeh Motallebzadeh, Hasti Amiri, Zhila Makoundi, Sepideh Kashani, Maliheh Jafari, Elnaz Eslami, Mahnaz Tarrah, Nazanin Mohammadnezhad, Raha Asgarizadeh and Golareh Abbasi (political prisoners in Evin Prison) announced their support to the recent protests in Iran by publishing separate messages. Monireh Arabshahi, Yasaman Ariani, Sakineh Parvaneh, Arsham Rezaei, Yashar Tabrizi, Zartosht Ahmadi Ragheb, Seyyed Afkham Ebrahimi, Siros Gharche, Sadegh Omidi, Moein Hajizadeh, Mohammad Khani and Mohammad Irannezhad, also reacted to this event by signing either a joint statement or going on a limited hunger strike.

Domestic Political or Civil Groups

Independent labour and teachers unions such as The Coordinating Council of Iranian Teachers' trade Associations, Teachers' unions of Tehran, Khuzestan, Bushehr, Fars, Eslamabad-e-Gharb and Kurdistan, The Syndicate of Workers of Tehran and Suburbs Bus Company (SWTSBC), The Free Union of Iranian Workers (FUIW), and Union of Scientific Societies of Social Sciences of the country condemned the death of 22-year-old Mahsa Amini by publishing separate statements.

Consultative Assembly of Yarasan Civil Activists, Iranian Retired Council, National Union of Iranian Retired, Tehran Independent Retired Group, House of Cinema and Reform Front also issued separate statements. They all condemned the incident, calling for the disbandment of the morality police and the trial of the commanders and perpetrators of Mahsa Amini's death.

Furthermore, the Islamic associations of students of Tehran University and Tehran Medical Sciences issued a statement protesting the performance of university security staff in suppressing students. And a group of gender equality and LGBTQI+ activists in Iran reacted to the recent events in Iran by publishing a statement.

As a symbolic act, a weekly magazine in Kermanshah called Sedaye Azadi (Voice of Freedom) also printed its front page in white in protest against what happened to Mahsa Amini.

In the meantime, startups such as Digikala, Snapp!, Flightio, Divar and TAPSI publicly announced their sympathy for the recent events by releasing separate messages.

On the other hand, on Monday, September 26, the Dentistry students at Tabriz University went on strike in protest against the widespread arrest of students. A group of students from "Shaheed Chamran" University in Ahvaz, Bu-Ali Sina University in Hamedan, Sooreh University in Tehran, University of Arts and Pars Architecture in Tehran, K. N. Toosi University of Technology, Allameh Tabataba'i University in Tehran, Tehran National University, Kharazmi University in Tehran, Tabriz National University, the Amirkabir University of Technology in Tehran, University of Science and Culture in Tehran, "Shahid Beheshti" University in Tehran, Tarbiat Modares University in Tehran, Qazvin International University, Ferdowsi University of Mashhad, Gilan University, Alzahra University in Tehran and the University of Social Welfare and Rehabilitation Sciences in Tehran by publishing statements protesting the suppression of protests and arresting students and refused to attend classes.

On the same day, the organizing council of oil contract workers' protests issued a statement in protest against "the killing of people and the repression and harassment of women because of the hijab and the death of Mahsa Amini at the hands of Morality Police." The organization warned the government and stated that "protesting is the inalienable right of us workers and we are the people, and we are protesting against the oppression and repression that has been inflicted on us for more than forty years. We are no longer willing to continue tolerating this slavery and injustice."

A group of professors at the Ferdowsi University of Mashhad also issued a statement calling for an end to any violence.

In addition, by publishing a statement, the Scientific Association of Political Sciences of Tabriz University announced that it will refrain from conducting any scientific activities and hold any educational classes until further notice. The association highlighted that such activities would give students hope that science is alive in this system and make them believe the lie and untruth.

More than 300 Christian-Iranian citizens inside the country also published a statement and announced their solidarity with the nationwide protests, condemning and announcing the suppression of protesting people by the Islamic Republic.

In response to the filtering and restrictions imposed on the Internet in Iran in the last few days, the Tehran E-Commerce Association has issued a statement criticizing these conditions and announced: "The interruption of access to Instagram in Iran has negatively affected more than 400,000 businesses, and the livelihood of more than one million people has faced serious problems.

Human Rights Organizations and Figures

International human rights organizations reacted to Mahsa Amini's death. In this regard, we can refer to the statement of Amnesty International, which described Mahsa Amini's death as a suspicious death and that "all agents and responsible officials" in this case should be brought to justice.

Human Rights Activists (in Iran), accompanied by 161 international and regional human rights organizations and women's rights defenders, announced their solidarity with the protesters in Iran by publishing a statement. Before that, Human Rights Activists (in Iran) and 12 other human rights organizations issued another statement calling for the international community's intervention to counter the oppression of women and protesters by the Iranian government. Also, Human Rights Activists (in Iran) with 19 human rights organizations, in a letter addressed to the President of the United States, Joe Biden, asked him to fulfill his promise to confront authoritarian and repression in Iran.

Furthermore, the Association for the Protection of Children's Rights issued a statement calling for an immediate end to any violence against children and declared its readiness to negotiate with the judicial authorities for the release of the arrested children.

On the other hand, Javaid Rehman, Special Rapporteur on the situation of human rights in Iran, condemned the compulsory hijab law in Iran "in the strongest tone." Prior to that, Mr. Rehman considered the compulsory hijab as a sign of widespread violation of human rights in Iran and demanded the adoption of resolutions by the United Nations Human Rights Council condemning the mandatory hijab in Iran. Reporters without Borders also published an article stating that the country's authorities have prevented the news coverage of widespread protests following Mahsa Amini's death.

In addition, acting UN High Commissioner for Human Rights Nada Al-Nashif expressed alarm at the death in custody of Mahsa Amini and the violent response by security forces to ensuing protests. And, UN Secretary-General Antonio Guterres called for an impartial and effective investigation of the death of 22-year-old Mahsa Amini. "We are increasingly concerned about reports of rising fatalities, including women and children, related to the protests," his spokesman Stephane Dujarric said in a statement.

Governments, Politicians, and Foreign Institutions

The US Secretary of State Antony Blinken, Robert Malley, Special Representative of the US Department of State, Jake Sullivan, US National Security Adviser, 21 US Congress Representatives, Nancy Pelosi, speaker of the United States House of Representatives, and French Ministry of Foreign Affairs also separately condemned the mandatory hijab laws in Iran. They demanded that the Iranian government allow the protesters to hold peaceful protests.

The European Union also said that the injuries inflicted on Mahsa Amini in police custody are unacceptable, and the perpetrators of this murder must be held accountable.

Canada's Prime Minister, Justin Trudeau, and Masud Gharahkhani, President of the Storting in Norway separately reacted to the suppression of popular protests in Iran.

Senator Adam Schiff, former US Secretary of State Hillary Clinton and Republican member of the US House of Representatives Michael McCaul spoke about oppression against women and injustice towards protesters.

Annalena Baerbock, Minister for Foreign Affairs of Germany, also described the attack on brave Iranian women as an attack on humanity and called for recognition of women's rights in Iran. And Mélanie Joly, Minister of Foreign Affairs of Canada, stated: "Canada is gravely concerned by potential further crackdowns and the use of additional force against civilians. We call on Iran to stop escalating tensions and to refrain from committing further acts of violence against its own population". "We salute the courage of the Iranian women who are peacefully protesting and we join them in sending the regime a very clear message: they must end all forms of persecution and violence against women," she added.

British Foreign Minister James Cleverly and Gabriel Boric, President of Chile, called for respect for people's protests and to end oppression against women.

Anonymous, a well-known hacktivist group, also came to the aid of Iranian protesters by organizing online to orchestrate cyber-attacks on Iranian officials and institutions and stated: "we will not keep the Iranian government alive on the internet."

In addition, Linda Thomas-Greenfield, who is the United States ambassador to the United Nations under President Joe Biden, while announcing her support for the courage of Iranian women in the nationwide protests, wrote in her Twitter account: To the women in Iran standing up for basic freedoms: we stand in solidarity with you. Your bravery is an inspiration to people all over the world".

Moreover, the government of Canada announced that it would sanction institutions and people responsible for violence against women in Iran, including the "Morality Police," which played a role in the death of Mahsa Amini. On the tenth day of the nationwide protests in Iran, Annalena Baerbock, Minister for Foreign Affairs of Germany, called for the imposition of sanctions against the authorities of the Islamic Republic for suppressing the protests.

In this regard, the French newspaper, Libération, devoted its first page to the protests of the Iranian people. In addition, the British newspaper The Times published a cartoon and wrote: This is the biggest demonstration against the hijab in modern history.

By publishing a statement, the European Council called on the government of the Islamic Republic of Iran to immediately stop the "violent" suppression of the ongoing protests in the country and to guarantee citizens' access to the Internet and the free flow of information.

On the other hand, Hundreds of women in the Kurdish city of Qamishli in Northeast Syria demonstrated in solidarity with Iranian women to condemn the death of Mahsa Amini who was an Iranian Kurdish woman.

Ravina Shamdasani, Spokesperson for the UN High Commissioner for Human Rights, also expressed concern about the suppression of protests by the security apparatus of the Islamic Republic and the restrictions imposed on the use of communication lines, the Internet and social networks in Iran and stated: "we are extremely concerned by comments by some leaders vilifying protesters, and by the apparent unnecessary and disproportionate use of force against protesters. Firearms must never be used simply to disperse an assembly".

Ahmad Massoud, an Afghan politician, said in response to nationwide protests in Iran, "everything that happens in Iran, more difficult of it happens Afghanistan; however, both of them are a common pain in which they defend for their rights."

Rashid Farivar, an Iranian-born Swedish Politician and a Member of the Sweden Parliament, also announced his support for the protests in Iran by publishing a message.

U.S. State Department spokesperson Ned Price said on his Twitter account that "Iranian women should not be subject to arrest, let alone brutal beatings, for how they choose to dress. Iran's government should listen to those protesting Mahsa Amini's unconscionable death in police custody, not fire on them". He also stated that we condemn the violence, the brutality exhibited by Iran's security forces following Mahsa Amini's death and that it is incumbent on the international community to speak out.

The Former United States Secretary of State, Mike Pompeo, also stated on his Twitter that "After more than 40 years of tyranny, the proud Iranian people are standing up to their government's abuses. The American people stand with the people of Iran".

Edi Rama, Prime Minister of Albania, ended diplomatic ties with Iran in a video statement on September 7 and declared, "the Albanian government will consider restoring relations with Iran only when Iran is free."

In addition, the representative of France condemned the death of Mahsa Amini and the "brutal" suppression of protesters by the security apparatus of the Islamic Republic and said: "The only fault of Mahsa Amini was that she did not wear a headscarf correctly."

Josh Burns, the head of the Australian Labor Party Parliamentary Joint Committee on Human Rights, also reacted to the events in Iran. In addition, Isabelle Lonvis-Rome, the Minister for Gender Equality, Diversity and Equal Opportunities in the Borne government, and Roland Rescuer, representative of the Minister of Industry of France, participated in the Iranian diaspora protest, which was held in Paris on September 26th in support of Iran's demonstrations. By publishing a statement that criticized their colleagues in academic environments, dozens of feminist professors from universities around the world demanded to declare their solidarity with the Iranian protesters. They claimed that the protests of the Iranian people are a 'feminist revolution" whose clear demand is to end a religious regime."

Moreover, Jim Risch, the Republican Senator in the US stated that the protests indicate Iranians' desire for a free and peaceful country. He also added that the Biden administration's blind pursuit of a new nuclear deal will only empower the regime." Democratic Senator Bob Menendez also said in a message that Iranian protesters should know that we in the United States and all over the world see and praise their courage against the violent, oppressive and misogynistic regime of Iran.

Rick Scott, Chris Van Hollen, Mitt Romney, and Mike Rounds, four American Senators, Giorgia Meloni, a member of the Chamber of Deputies in Italy, and Peter Khalil, a Member of the Australian House of Representatives, are among other foreign political figures who have reacted to the recent events in Iran.

More importantly, Mélanie Joly, Minister of Foreign Affairs of Canada, announced the list of sanctions on 34 Iranian officials and entities about a week after Canadian Prime Minister Justin Trudeau promised measures against the Islamic Republic. The list includes 25 individuals and 9 entities such as Mohammed-Hossein Bagheri, Major General in the Islamic Revolutionary Guard Corps (IRGC) and the Chief of Staff of Iran's Armed Forces; Major General Hossein Salami, Commander-in-Chief of the Islamic Revolutionary Guard Corps (IRGC); Esmail Qaani, Commander of the Quds Force of the Islamic Revolutionary Guard Corps; Seyyed Mohammed Saleh Hashemi Golpayegani, Secretary of Iran's Headquarters for the Office of Enjoining Right and Forbidding Evil; Islamic Revolutionary Guard Corps' (IRGC) Cyber Defense Command; Evin Prison, which houses political prisoners; Iran's Morality Police, and Mohammad Rostami Cheshmeh Gachi, Head of the Morality Police; Esmail Khatib, Minister of Intelligence and Security and the Ministry of Intelligence and Security (MOIS).

Similarly, the German magazine Der Spiegel reported that six member states of the European Union, including Germany, France, Denmark, Spain, Italy and the Czech Republic, have submitted 16 proposals for new European Union sanctions against Iran for its violent crackdown on protests over women's rights.

Austria supports "together with our European partners," Germany, France, Denmark, Italy, Spain and Czechia, the extension of sanctions against those responsible for human rights violations in Iran, the foreign ministry said. "The Federal Government is called upon to work to prevent and combat violence against women, including sexual and gender-based violence, and to address relevant individual cases such as the case of Mahsa Amini, also at the bilateral level," said the for Foreign Affairs human rights spokesperson in Austria, Ewa Ernst-Dziedzic, on 30 September.

Furthermore, in a statement, the President of the United States, Joe Biden, stated that "for decades, Iran's regime has denied fundamental freedoms to its people and suppressed the aspirations of successive generations through intimidation, coercion, and violence. The United States stands with Iranian women and all the citizens of Iran who are inspiring the world with their bravery". He added that "the United States is making it easier for Iranians to access the Internet, including through facilitating greater access to secure, outside platforms and services. The United States is also holding accountable Iranian officials and entities, such as the Morality Police, that are responsible for employing violence to suppress civil society".

Wendy Ruth Sherman, United States Deputy Secretary of State, shared President Biden's statement on her Twitter account and added: "the United States remains deeply concerned about the intensifying violent crackdown on peaceful protesters in Iran. We stand with the Iranian people and will continue supporting their right to protest freely".

Karine Jean-Pierre, White House Press Secretary, also announced the US government's "concern and disgust" over the suppression of protesting Iranian students after the death of 22-year-old Mahsa Amini. She told the press that university students in Iran are "rightly enraged" by Mahsa Amini's death and that the recent crackdowns in the Sharif University are the type of events that prompt young people in Iran to leave the country "and seek dignity and opportunity elsewhere."

More so, Roberta Metsola, President of the European Parliament, supported the protests of Iranian women and stated that "Women. Life. Liberty." [aka Woman, Life, Freedom] Three words that have become a rallying cry for all those standing up for equality, dignity and freedom in Iran".

Last but not least, by releasing a statement, the Swedish Trade Union Confederation declared that we are "deeply concerned by the death of Mahsa Amini after she suffered injuries while in police custody. The Iranian regime must respect and ensure the fundamental rights of Iran's citizens and that those who are under any form of detention are not subject to violence and mistreatment."

Against protests; Public Figures, Government, and Military organizations

Mehdi Ramezani, the deputy governor of Kurdistan, only reported that "a few people who had thrown stones in front of the governorate of this city" were injured and claimed that "no one has been killed" during the protests in Sanandaj and Saqqez over the past two days. He also confirmed the arrest of several protesters.

Islamic of Republic of Iran's President Ebrahim Raisi also only stated that there is a difference between protests and riots.

Mohammad Sadegh Kooshaki, a fundamentalist activist, said regarding the protests that "they want to promote chaos, they have come to the streets and falsely claim that they are grieving a girl who died young".

Also, Mohammad Reza Naqdi, the deputy coordinator of the IRGC, said: "the enemy's media empire has used the death of a woman as an excuse for their propaganda. Mahsa Amini's death was accidental."

Hossein Hasanzadeh, the deputy police chief of Gilan, while calling the protesters rioters, said: "If the protests continue in Rasht city; The police will use other "legal tactics at their disposal".

Ahmad Khatami, Friday imam of Tehran said: "Those who have eaten the bread of the system have joined the rioters."

Hossein Rahimi, the head of the Tehran police, defended the performance of the police force and said: "The police have a duty to warn those who do not comply with the necessary regulations." In this regard, the Army of the Islamic Republic of Iran issued a statement and stated: "We strongly condemn any destruction of public property, disturbance in the security of the people and the country, and any attack on security personnel." Also, in a statement, the Islamic Revolutionary Guard Corps (IRGC) considered the actions of the country's police command as the guarantor of the authority and security of the system and the Islamic Republic. The General Staff of the Armed Forces of the Islamic Republic of Iran also published a similar statement; "The armed forces will not allow the current security and peace to be compromised."

Gholam-Hossein Mohseni-Eje'i, the head of the Judiciary, called the protesting citizens rioters and asked the prosecutors all over the country to "accelerate" the processing of the cases of the arrested protesters.

Behzad Rahimi, the representative of Saqqez and Baneh in the Islamic Council called the arrest of protesters a preventive measure. Ruhollah Salgi, the political security deputy of the governor of Mazandaran, announced that 76 police and Basij agents were injured in this province during the protests.

In response to criticism of the human rights situation in Iran and the suppression of protesters, Nasser Kanani, the spokesman of the Iranian Ministry of Foreign Affairs, said: "Human rights perpetrators do not deserve to comment on human rights." Earlier, Issa Zarepour, the Minister of Communications, and Information Technology, considered the Internet restrictions to be due to security issues.

Jafar Mohammadi, a member of the board of directors of the Nasr Organization in Tehran, said earlier: "All the start-ups that expressed their condolences on the death of Mahsa Amini in various posts on the social network have been ordered to delete these posts."

In addition, in a report, Tasnim news agency announced that Mehran Modiri was "banned from leaving the country" and claimed: "He has already left the country."

A Hamshahri newspaper report wrote on behalf of Gholam-Hossein Mohseni-Eje'i, the head of the Judiciary, addressing the artists and celebrities supporting the demands of the protesting people: "Those who echo the enemy's voice, should know they will have to pay for the material and spiritual damage caused to the people and the country. Those who encouraged and supported [protests] are guilty and their wrongdoings will be dealt with."

In addition, Lotfollah Siahkali, the representative of Qazvin in the Islamic Council, while confirming the internet shut down in Iran, said: "As long as the streets are busy, we will see disruptions and restrictions of the internet and social networks!"

In a visit to the Greater Tehran Prison, Mohammad Jafar Montazeri, the Attorney General of the country, claimed in regard to the detainees of the nationwide protests: "During this visit, it was emphasized to speed up the handling of the affairs of the detainees and the condition of detention of the detainees is favorable."

Also, in a report, Mehr News Agency announced that there are public accusations and arrest warrants against a number of former IRIB actors and hosts.

Mohsen Mansouri, the governor of Tehran, also threatened the celebrities who supported the protesting people during the nationwide protests and said: "We will deal with the celebrities who fanned the flames of 'riots'."

Ensiyeh Khazali, the vice president for women's affairs, stated that the principle of hijab and modesty is cultural building, and claimed: "we do not have a physical confrontation with the issue of hijab, and we hope that hijab will return to its path."

Also, Kurdistan Governor Ismail Zarei Koosha, while calling the popular protests in Kurdistan "riots", claimed: "in Kurdistan province, less than three percent of the protesters were arrested."

Hamid Maleki, the deputy director of seminaries (Hozeh), claimed that Mahsa Amini's death while in custody was a "natural death" and claimed: "they make a "natural death" that occurs all over the world an excuse to hold riots."

Eisa Zarepour, the Minister of Communications, also said regarding the WhatsApp and Instagram filter: "In the current situation and until an unknown time, the filter of some social networks such as WhatsApp and Instagram will continue to be in place."

In addition, Hekmat Ali Mozaffari, the head of the Administrative Court of Justice, said in response to the protests against Mahsa Amini's death: "people should not be deceived by deviant movements, and for this reason, the principles of the regime should not be targeted."

In a statement, Dezful's Friday Prayer Imam said that "if his majesty allows us, we will end the riots in an hour" and Iran's Foreign Minister claimed that "the United States is working with the rioters in the implementation of the 'insecurity project' in Iran".

While standing among the Special Units responsible for suppressing the protest in recent days, Hossein Ashtari, the Commander-in-Chief of the Islamic Republic of Iran, called the way to deal with the nationwide uprising of the people "the bright path" and said: "Don't doubt for a bit, our path is the right path."

The prosecutor of Tehran also said about the recent incidents: "those who want to disrupt the great achievement of peace and security of the people will face a harsh and decisive action by the judicial system."

At the same time, the Minister of the Interior asked the judicial system to "deal decisively, quickly and punitively with the leaders of the recent events".

Mohseni-Eje'i, the head of the Judiciary, stated: "it has been emphasized that innocent or less guilty citizens should be released before being transferred to prisons and detention centers."

Ali Mirahmadi, deputy police chief of Semnan province, announced the arrest of 155 protesters in this province and said: "26 of them were women and 124 were men."

Also, Ali Alghasi-Mehr, Chief Justice of Tehran Province, said: "Special branches for dealing with crimes against public security have been established in Tehran's General and Revolutionary Prosecutor's Office, Revolutionary Court and Court of Appeal."

The President of the Supreme Court, Mortazavi Moghadam, declared: "The people who committed these atrocities with hot and cold weapons during the recent riots are "real Moharebs [those who wage war against god or people]". Ali Moalemi, Qaemshahr Friday Prayer Imam, also called "burning a scarf extremely indecent."

Ahmad Khatami, a member of the Board of Experts, said: "From the beginning, the police said that there was absolutely no beating of Mahsa Amini." What the police did about Mahsa Amini was according to the law and they followed the law, and the story of Mahsa Amini became an excuse for the oppositionists of the regime"

Hossein Rajabi, the prosecutor of Qazvin, stated that the judicial system will deal with the people who were active in the gatherings in a decisive, uncompromising and deterrent manner, and said: "The faces that encouraged people in the cyberspace to continue subversive actions are under surveillance and legal action will be taken against them"

In addition, Hasan Karami, the commander of the special unit of the police, described the anti-government protesters as rioters and thugs and said that if they come back to the scene, "we are ready to bring the situation under our control within four to five days."

Moreover, in an interview with Al-Monitor, Hossein Amir-Abdollahian, the foreign minister of the Islamic Republic, made the suppression of popular protests a natural thing and claimed: "We must respond to the riots in a powerful and formidable way, and there is a complete democracy in Iran; Come and see for yourself."

Sadegh Hosseini, the commander of the Kurdistan Revolutionary Guards Corps, also stated that "the regime did all it could for Mahsa Amini's case" and claimed: "Those who claim to care about Mahsa Amini were happy about the death of this lady."

More so, Fars news agency claimed, "Most of the protesters are under 18 years of age, they are violent, have no religious campus, they believe in the ultimate freedom of relations with the opposite sex, have weak family ties, they have no economical concerns, and they carry pocketknives and pepper spray."

The Ministry of Intelligence of the Islamic Republic of Iran published a statement on Friday, October 8, announcing the arrest of more than 265 protesters during the nationwide protests, including 9 people with citizenship of foreign countries, widespread summonses and opening new cases for some other protesters.

IRIB also published an interview with a person who is said to be the father of Hadith Najafi and claimed: "The police did not kill my daughter. The BBC is lying. And No one can force me to speak against my will." Prior to this, a video of Hadith Najafi's mother was published stating that her daughter died by three bullets and after the death of her daughter, her family was under pressure from the security forces, and Hadith Najafi's sister also published an article on the social media, stating "On the day Hadith's body was handed over, his father was beaten, and they summon him to the court every day."

In addition, a number of news channels that are close to the security institutions have published a video of the forced confessions of a number of citizens who are alleged to be protesters in provinces such as Gilan and Isfahan.

The Attorney General of the country issued a statement to the public and revolutionary prosecutors of the country regarding the handling of the protesters' case and announced: "The leaders and subordinates of the recent events should be detained until the court is held. In the court, severe punishment, and the issuance of restraining orders without discounts should be requested for them, in the case of detained students, a decision should be made with the opinion of the security guard and the university president, and the students who have played a role in disrupting public security should be temporarily detained; Other students should be released on bail."

It should be noted that with the announcement of this statement, Ebrahim Hamidi, the Chief Justice of Kerman Province, and Hosseini, the Chief Justice of Kurdistan Province, announced the arrest and imprisonment of some protesters and the issuing and execution of sentences for these people, and Kazem Mousavi, the Chief Justice and The prosecutor of Fars province's capital also said regarding the arrestees of nationwide protests: "The arrestees of the recent events will be detained until the end of the judicial investigation."

The Guardian Council announced in a statement: "It expects the judicial system to deal decisively with the main perpetrators and causes of killing and injuring innocent people and security guards, as well as those who attack people and destroy public and private property." »

Hossein Amir-Abdollahian, the Minister of Foreign Affairs of the Islamic Republic of Iran, in an interview with NPR National Radio, said that "Iran is not a place where anyone can stage a color coup or a revolution", he said: "In Iran, we pay attention to the demands of the people, but with Those who want to riot and be influenced by foreign countries, we will act according to our laws."

Also, Mohammad-Bagher Ghalibaf claimed: "Unfortunately, we are busy with those who have not endured even a single slap for the revolution, they have not suffered, and they have not done anything, and they have only cheered while we have emptied the square and pulled away."

A group of representatives of the Islamic Council issued a statement in response to nationwide protests in Iran, condemning "insulting the sanctity of the people, including women's Hijab" and claiming: "We are trying to eliminate the grounds for breaking moral norms and obscenity and create an atmosphere To provide suitable culture for the Iranian nation.

In a statement, the command of Iran's police force called the protesters "Rioters" and "enemies of the government" who "seek to disrupt the order, security and comfort of the nation under any pretext and tactic." He also announced that "law enforcement officers of the country will stand until the last moment". In this regard, Ghasem Rezaei, the Deputy Commander of the Police Force of the Islamic Republic of Iran, claimed: "The police force is of the people and for the people, and we will not allow mercenaries and rioters to have a chance."

On Thursday, September 29, Mohsen Mansouri, the governor of Tehran, said: "We may not deal with the protesters for any reason in the midst of riots, but anyone who has played a leading role in the recent riots should know that we will definitely deal with them in whatever hole they are hiding in." In addition, Abedin Khorrami, the governor of East Azerbaijan, claimed: "Today, the war is the war of virtual space and media. A few people, about 150 people, who have entered the field, is the product of years of efforts, propaganda, and psychological operations that the enemy has carried out."

In addition, Hossein Salami, the Commander-in-Chief of the IRGC, has threatened that "taking revenge for the blood of the martyrs of Zahedan's Black Friday crime is on our agenda."

233 members of the parliament issued a statement demanding severe punishment for the protesters.

Also, the heads of the three powers of the Islamic Republic have discussed the protests of the last two weeks at the presidential headquarters of Iran. In this meeting, they have appreciated the role of government agencies in "combating riots", and also, "the heads of the executive, legislative and judicial branches emphasized the necessity of recognizing and explaining the conspiracies of anti-Iranians and enemies of the Islamic Revolution from the media and elites. They also said they appreciate the honorable people of the country who have thwarted the complex and multi-layered planning of the enemies to create a crisis in the country with their insight, timing and smart demarcation.

In addition, the IRGC Intelligence Organization published a message and wrote: "Undoubtedly, the children of the proud nation of Islamic Iran will avenge the pure blood of the oppressed martyrs of Zahedan on Black Friday from the enemies, and the cowardly attacks of the armed opponents will not go unanswered. and by God's grace, they will wipe out the blind and cruel movements of the enemies."

On Monday, October 3rd, the leader of the Islamic Republic of Iran said at Police University regarding the death of Mahsa Amini and the nationwide protests in Iran: "A young girl died, which broke our hearts, but the reaction to this incident without investigation and without knowing the facts and its truth, Let some people come to make the streets unsafe, burn the Quran, remove the Hijab from the head of a veiled woman, set fire to the mosque, Hosseiniyeh, and people's cars, it was not a normal and natural reaction."

Also, Iran Newspaper, in an article entitled "Separatists are busy", analyzed the direct shooting at the worshipers on Friday in Zahedan and wrote: "Some regions of the country, such as Sistan and Baluchistan region, due to the geopolitical situation and also Special cultural, ethnic, economic and social characteristics have always been exposed to a large amount of terrorist attacks.

Nasser Kanani, the spokesman of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs of the Islamic Republic, referring to the telephone call of Ebrahim Raisi with the family of Mahsa Amini, said: "We are defenders of women's rights in the Islamic Republic, and women's human rights are among our values, and the Islamic Republic is a model and example in the field of women's rights."

Also, on Tuesday, October 4th, Ebrahim Raisi, while attending the Islamic Council, emphasized Ali Khamenei's statements the previous day and said: "In his speech, the Supreme Leader of the Islamic Revolution presented a comprehensive analysis of the recent events and the reason for sedition against the country. And they brought up the revolution, which was understandable to everyone, and the reason for the enemy's anger towards our country and nation is that they see that we are progressing despite the threats and sanctions. He ignores the sanctions and obstacles, yes, but he tries to remove the sanctions, but at the same time, he tries to neutralize the sanctions."

Mohammad-Bagher Ghalibaf, Speaker of the Parliament, welcomed Ali Khamenei's statements and said: "Enlightened statements were made in a sensitive situation and he made very wise, intelligent and precise words and once again defined the demarcation between the people and rioters."

Ahmad Vahidi, the Minister of Interior, stated that today's enemy's war is a war of values, and claimed: Those who created slogans such as women, life, freedom; They created the most heinous scenes to defend women and see freedom in women's nakedness and shamelessness.
